3rd day. Good meeting with Friends & others at Pickering. & réunion of Friends afterwards at Wm Wright's. Love & tenderness, with a good understanding of one another in the truth, prevailing. In the afternoon which was bright & clear, Jervis Cornell kindly conveyed us in his wagon 18 miles, to a tavern at Darlington where we lodged tolerably. The Aurora superb. & on 4th day, 32 miles further to Cobourg, a considerable town on the border of the Lake, where after a good deal of low & discouraging feelings, a good public meeting was held in the evening, well attended & with much feeling. Breakfasted at James Crook's from Hamilton & lodged ~~there~~ at the Hotel. John Clark conveyed us on 5th day morning to his house at Haldimand (on a hill overlooking the lake). There we had a small, exercising, low meeting, but I hope not an unprofitable one, humbling at least to myself; & after dinner John drove us to a desolate looking village, Colborne, ~~[illegible]~~. I was very low, even sorrowful: things looked quite discouraging: but tho the people were late in gathering, we had quite a large & good meeting & went afterwards in the dark to James Purdie's (2 miles) on the Lake shore: where we found a humble lodging, but truly kind reception. 6th day. Sailed in the Lake arrived at Brighton in time for a meeting appointed there, held in a large office room with Priests & Magistrates & large, it was to me a relieving time. Ryerson the leader of the Methodists in Canada there with some others of their ministers — very cordial. "As many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God." Mr Simpson drove us over wretched roads — most pine woods — to ~~Clear~~ Clear Creek. Wm Valentine's large & good meeting there with friends & others at 4 o'cl. Sea company at ~~the~~ Jos. ~~Ty~~ Tyrrell's 1st day. Good Barnabas times at Sea & Wm Valentine's — much sympathy with the poor afflicted widow. Then 30 miles in Jesse Tyrrell's waggon — little pine woods, stony roads, & mouth of the Trent, to Arnoldi Dorland's ~~at~~ where have we reached at Sundown & found good quarters. To Milford meeting this morning at 11 — a large concourse of people — there being a methodist funeral in Friend's ground. I spoke at the grave & then, comforted the mourners — after which we had a good meeting — we know that we are passed from death into life, because we love the brethren". Came on to dinner at his agreeable abode & this afternoon we have had a large, read, favoured meeting at Westlake — many Methodists. "I am the light of the world" — the parable of the Lighthouse. On returning to his house this evening, I am graciously permitted to feel a peculiar degree of peace & surely the
