that for his honor & glory's sake — God will assist & enable me to bring the whole of this transatlantic mission to a sound & satisfactory conclusion. Hitherto he has wonderfully helped & guided me.
I must not, will not, dare not distrust Him! Fourth day 7th 11mo/27th.

This is our fifth day at sea — & I may gratefully commemorate the goodness of the Lord who has been pleased to keep me in a quiet, & generally, easy frame of mind. I have suffered more than ever before, from nausea — but am now relieved — & although the weather has been quite of the rough order, I have tasted a good deal of pure enjoyment — especially during the extended sail of yesterday. We enjoyed a pretty comfortable Scripture reading Sei: with the passengers on First day, & this morning, in the midst of strong wind, I have had a group around me on deck. Verses & conversation have flowed full fast enough & I feel the necessity of dwelling deeply low, in the good old place of safety, that I may be delivered from the trade of folly, & my own heart [illegible] & may be preserved in reverent humility before the Lord. Let the words of my mouth, & the meditation of my heart be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord my strength & my Redeemer.
O that the gospel remedy, may pute the root of all evil in me; & that I may be preserved humble & blameless, in body, soul, & spirit. Matter upward one this morning for having used the word 'fate'. Had no recollection of it myself; but I fearfully agree to his objection — O for an ever-watchful guard — a watching of the swift-footed clocks of the Lord's anointing!

First day night 19mo 1.

We have sped along finely in our voyage, having been favoured with an not unintermittent fair wind being now in 22 N. latitude enjoying a delightful Trade wind & the sky clear, the sea quiet, & the temperature most delicious. It is cause for true thankfulness that we have been permitted to hold our meetings to day to our comfort. That in the cabin this morning with our whole company of passengers very satisfactory & relieving to me — then with the sailors — & in the afternoon Scripture reading for a Deal. This Evening has been one of quiet leisure — enjoying the scene, air &c. I hope a degree of thankfulness clothes my spirit. The Lord be praised!

Second day morn:

The weather continues full of delicious the morning & the little world within is strangely very in a good degree of order & tranquillity — I feel as if I might quietly repose for a season on the bosom of infinite love.
