

ment of the same lamb-like spirit. To bear a faithful testimony against war, we must ourselves come under the dominion of the Prince of Peace, and ^{to} bear a consistent testimony against slavery, we must know a deliverance from those passions and propensities which bring the soul into bondage to corruption; and thus having washed our hands in innocency, we shall be prepared to support the ark of the covenant which our fathers have borne.

An earnest desire was expressed, that in regard to the maintenance and support of our important testimony against the improper use of ardent spirits, we may endeavor to dwell near to the principle from which that noble testimony spring, and not to place dependence upon our own contrivances or upon those of others. And as we keep to that Holy principle of light and life manifested in ourselves, and feel its entire sufficiency in preserving us in the true and living way, we cannot, consistently, join in calling the attention of others to any outward means of deliverance from this desolating evil.

When the time adjourned to, friends again assembled.

The committee in relation to the Fair Hill Boarding School, produced the following report, which was satisfactory, and the committee was continued, viz:

"To the Yearly Meeting, now sitting

"The Standing Committee in relation to the Fair Hill Boarding School, report, that several of the committee have recently visited the school, and attended a satisfactory examination of the children; - though they found the number of scholars in attendance small, the committee believe that the friends in charge of the school and the property, have endeavored faithfully to discharge their duty in relation thereto; and it is a source of regret that a greater evidence of the just appreciation of the advantages there afforded has not been given.

"Which we submit to the meeting"
