This meeting met according to adjournment and proceeds to what business may there be.

The Representatives being called they all but two appeared with an account from our Social Quarterly Meetings which was produced in writing and read.
It appears that our Quarterly Meetings for worship and Discipline have been constantly kept on their appointed sevens and the business thereof transacted in a good degree of love and concord. And by account from our monthly meetings it appears that they have been constantly kept on their appointed times since the last account except one day of our monthly meetings at West River which was occasioned by sickness and other

Care remains on the minds of a Committee to put the Discipline in Practice for amendment, and Jun. Bowdler reports also that the Lucanis was read in their meeting and answered to in writing and likewise the service of Visiting of Friends in their Families has been gone through in our monthly meetings except a few that was not at home. To good satisfaction to the Visited and to the Visitors. Care is taken of the Poor.

An Epistle from the yearly meeting at Philadelphia
