Memorial.

Caroline
M.
Ellicott.

In His great harvest field the Lord has use for labors with very different gifts, and success in His service is to be measured by Christ likeness of character and by the faithfulness and thoroughness with which the opportunities that are afforded are seized upon and ~~improved~~ improved. During most of the years which covered the period of her deeper religious experience, the health of our dear friend Caroline M.

Ellicott, was feeble, and she subject to frequent attacks of alarming illness which greatly prostrated her. Her labors in the ministry, therefore, were almost entirely confined to the small meeting that was held in her neighborhood. Many of the members of her own Monthly Meeting seldom had the privilege of listening to her.
Yet, in her own meeting, whenever the state of her health at all permitted, and often in great feebleness of body, she was constant in her attendance, and labored faithfully in prayer and in the ministry of the word, to the comfort and edification of those who were gathered with her. A Friend, who had frequent opportunities of being
