

She devoted much time to Bible Study and had a gift for Bible teaching. In the last years of her life she had a large Bible Class for ladies every Fourth day morning at the Meeting house, which was an inspiration and help to many of other denominations.

When suddenly called as was by the development of an infectious disease from all active work, she was found at her post of duty and although realizing that it might be her last service she acted with her usual spirit and sweetness as presiding officer of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Clayland during their Annual Convention, and as Clerk of Baltimore Yearly Meeting in Eleventh Month 1887.
