

19 B

She goes with a company of friends who are kind & helpful to her after she gets there. writes that it is a delightful resort, & the air salubrious, scenery grand, also the facilities for receiving information from their friends immediate at the door. - The girls & Philip join in much love & good wishes. The children grow fast. Mary says she has forgotten how cousin Margaret looks, but Phil. thinks he would know her again. And I am sure I would know her. Bless her heart! There are many things arise in memory when I think of thee dear Cousin - Spring time, flowers, and fruit, bring childhoods days to recollection. But the present time abounds with mercy & blessings also - & though far apart.

"Yet still our prayers may blend -
From earth's remotest shore,
While toward that holy clime we bend
Where partings are no more. -

Now with dear love - and thanks to dear Bettie for writing thy thoughts to us - & love also to Jane Francis - Maggie & Joseph Elliott - & Children of the family - I am as ever, thy attached cousin -