Ms. H. White

Waynesville

My beloved Cousin }

1.12.1890.

I know thou wilt excuse my seeming remissness in replying to thy last letter, so full of interesting particulars, when I tell thee that while lowering a window in my bed room, I inadvertently let the sash fall across the fingers of my right hand, ten days back, giving myself much suffering, the loss probably of two finger nails, as well as rendering me incapable of replying to a number of letters, and acknowledging the receipt of many sweet-memorials of affection, from absent friends.

The account of the Y. Mtg. was gratifying. It will always surmount my meeting, than any other - if the one (Indiana), that I belong to, does not number it by several thousand members. Yes, dear Deborah Thomas was missed from her place,
- and
